TREKKING

Kashmir offers one of the best trekking trails with the snow-covered peaks, the cascading streams, the deep, and lush green valleys. High peaks of the Himalayas attract thousands of adventure sports lovers to Kashmir. The trekking season spans from mid-May to mid-October. One can explore Alpine and Himalayan peaks in Kashmir, offering unlimited mountaineering options within the Indian Himalayas and Pir Panjal Range.

For beginners, there are several mountaineering and trekking clubs to train and to guide them. Tourists can hire guides to make the entire journey interesting and informative. The Kashmir valley, with its short treks, adds an adventurous touch to visitors' vacations.

SKIING/SNOW BOARDING

Kashmir is a premier destination for skiing, offering some of the world's finest slopes. The area transforms into a winter wonderland, attracting both professional and amateur skiers. The government facilitates skiing and snowboarding with Ski Shops offering rentals, and private instructors also provide services. The slopes, bustling with locals and tourists, feature ski lifts and chair lifts for easy access, though professionals prefer the high slopes.

Gulmarg provides an exhilarating experience with 10 to 12 slopes catering to various skill levels. The stretch from Gulmarg to Kongdoori is a favored route, reached via Gondola, offering a 3 km downhill journey through pristine snow. The government also provides heli-skiing, where professionals are airlifted to higher reaches for an adventurous descent, supported by a well-equipped ski patrol team for rescue operations.

RAFTING

Kashmir, renowned for its rivers and lakes offers a chance to explore the thrill of river rafting. Pahalgam and Sonmarg offer ideal stretches for this adventure sport, particularly during the summer when rivers are brimming with water. The Sindh River, from upper to lower Sonamarg, provides the best stretch for professionally-guided white water runs. However, beyond this point, the river becomes challenging, requiring technical skills and careful organization. The upstream stretch serves as an ideal training ground for amateurs seeking basic training in river rafting.

ANGLING

Kashmir, often hailed as the 'Angler's Paradise,' offers a spectacular fishing experience with its abundant rivers, lakes, and springs. The fishing season, from April to September, unveils a diverse aquatic world featuring prized catches like rainbow trout and brown trout. With approximately 61 open beats for fishing and angling, Kashmir provides opportunities for enthusiasts to explore its glacial and snow-fed streams. To preserve cultural and religious sites, fishing is restricted in certain areas. Anglers must obtain permits from the J&K Government's Directorate of Fisheries, and only fly fishing is permitted in the region.
